Team Environment Competitive Pay Flexible Schedules Dynamic People

Global Water Management, LLC (Global Water) is a Phoenix, Arizona company focused on the development and delivery of advanced technologies to water utilities through its cloud-based, geospatial platforms, collectively called FATHOM. Originally part of Global Water Resources, Inc. (GWRI), a leading water resource management company that owns and operates water, wastewater and recycled water utilities, FATHOM was developed in-house to provide the features and functionality required to run the GWRI utilities efficiently and effectively. Now as its own independent software company, FATHOM continues to provide Customer Information System (CIS), Asset Management System (AMS), and Advanced Metering Infrastructure (AMI) services for GWRI's utilities as well as an additional nine utilities in Arizona, California and Texas.

FATHOM was founded on the belief that the world's water resources are becoming increasingly volatile and that highly proactive management and customer engagement are necessary to ensure the sustainability of our resources and utilities. With in-depth utility knowledge and experience in our DNA, FATHOM has created and is riding the wave to smarter, more efficient water utilities - one byte at a time. We are developing and deploying not only new operating platforms for utility systems, but changing the way utilities acquire, analyze and use data. FATHOM's people excel at designing, developing, deploying and operating innovative systems and processes to increase revenue, reduce costs, delight customers and save water - all under a rapidly deployable, highly scalable, software-as-a-service platform.

While this position may be a part time role, that in no way reduces the immense opportunity within the Global Water team. Our customer service representatives experience an unrivaled chance for advancement. Employees at Global have a clear trajectory for becoming full time employees. Beyond transitioning to full-time, historically, 64% of our call center staff was promoted within 6 months, and 27% was promoted 2-3 times in that same time period. Team members are promoted to roles throughout the organization, capitalizing on the strengths and passions of the individual. The entry level experience of customer service coupled with the challenge and pace of Global Water, make it an ideal place to start a career.

Summary: This position requires a very careful adherence to well-defined work where repeatable results are needed. The work is highly precise in nature and requires very strong attention to detail. It is vital for the work output to be very high quality, with correct results, time and time again. Individuals performing this job must be patient and conscientious. The work is helpful in nature; providing support and/or service to others in an environment free from competition. Interacting with customers requires a professional, formal manner where the focus is on completing the task pleasantly and correctly.

Minimum Qualifications: To perform the job successfully, an individual should demonstrate the following competencies to perform the essential functions of this position* At least one year of customer service experience, call center experience a plus* High School Diploma* Good grammar, voice and diction (Excellent communication skills)* Basic computer and keyboarding skills* Excellent customer service skills (friendly, courteous and helpful)* Interpersonal skills-the individual maintains confidentiality, able to interact within a team environment, effectively communicates with customers in a professional manner. (Will not discuss personal issues with customer) * Remains open to others ideas and exhibits willingness to try new things*Individual identifies and resolves problems in a timely manner*Ability to read and interpret documents and procedures*Analytical and problem solving-the individual has the ability to do simple calculations , gathers and analyzes information skillfully.Planning/organizing—the individual prioritizes and plans work activities and uses time efficiently Quality control—the individual demonstrates accuracy and thoroughness and monitors own work proficiency to ensure quality* We're looking for Mavericks!: FATHOM is a positive disruptive force for the water industry. Our motto is Rules are made to be broken* That's why FATHOM looks for those Mavericks who find delight in challenging the status quo and turning it upside down on a daily basis. It takes a courageous individual to feel comfortable in such a liberating environment, with strong attributes like hardworking, innovative, collaborative, proactive, eating pressure for breakfast (and liking it), and playing as hard as you work. Bring these strengths to work and FATHOM has a place for you.

Glendale career fair to fill 1,000 jobs

by Erin Kennedy azfamily.com Posted on November 19, 2013 at 5:21 PM

GLENDALE, Ariz. -- As more jobs are coming to the West Valley, the city of Glendale will be hosting a career workshop and job fair on Tuesday, Dec. 3 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The event will be held at the Foothills Recreation and Aquatics Center, located at 5600 West Union Hills Drive.

The city of Glendale is partnering with Maricopa Workforce Connections and Glendale Community College to host the career fair and workshop.

Several companies including Empereon Marketing, Terminix, CSAA Insurance Group, Dignity Health, ZyTech Building Systems, Lowe's and Fry's are looking to hire employees to fill more than 1,000 jobs.

Most of the jobs come from two new companies, Empereon Marketing and Barron Lighting Group, which will open in the coming months.

Empereon Marketing provides call center solutions and services, and its second Valley location will be located at 5260 West Phelps Road, southwest of Bell Road and 51st Avenue. The new facility will bring 750 jobs to Glendale and an annual economic impact of $900,000.

Barron Lighting Group manufactures emergency, commercial and industrial lighting, and its new building will be in the Glendale Airpark, located at 7445 Glen Harbor Boulevard. The company hopes to hire 80 employees within its first year.

"Both of these companies will strengthen Glendale's economy while creating opportunities for hundreds of jobs right here in our community," said Brian Friedman, executive director of community and economic development. "There's great value and a positive ripple effect when new companies choose to locate and invest in Glendale and contribute to the city's overall diverse list of employers."

The event begins at 10 a.m. with a workshop called "Utilizing LinkedIn to Network Your Way to Success." Dayna Mathews, a career expert at Glendale Community College, will show participants how to use sites such as LinkedIn to search for jobs. Space at the workshop is limited and it is suggested to arrive at least 30 minutes early.

Career workshop and job fair participants do not have to pre-register. Employers interested in filling job positions can contact Jeanine Jerkovic of Glendale Economic Development Division by phone at 623-930-2985 or through email at jjerkovic@glendaleaz.com.

For more information, visit: www.glendaleaz.com or the Maricopa Workforce Connections website at www.maricopaworkforceconnections.com.

The Glendale Police Department is also looking to hire police officers. They plan to open recruitment and begin accepting applications from Monday, December 2, through Sunday, December 15. Glendale Police Department hopes to fill 30 police officer positions.

Applicants are encouraged to attend an optional orientation about the position and Glendale Police Department on Thursday, December 12, at 6:00 p.m. at Glendale Regional Public Safety Training Center.

Detective Michelle Blanco will be holding on camera interviews on Thursday, November 21.

Rapidly Growing Appointment-Plus To Host Two Career Fairs on Dec. 5 and Dec. 13 in Scottsdale - AZ Tech Beat

Appointment-Plus has some good news for the Valley. They are the creators of an online scheduling software used by millions worldwide, and last time AZ Tech Beat reported on them, we finished the article by stating that they are looking for some quality local talent to fill some new positions. Well, after tripling the size of the company since 2010, and still needing more workers, Appointment-Plus is putting on two separate job fairs at their Scottsdale headquarters to recruit more human capital.

Here are the details:

When: Wednesday, December 5th – 4PM to 7PM and Thursday, December 13th – 4PM to 7PM

Where: Appointment-Plus, 13951 North Scottsdale Road, Suite #110, Scottsdale, AZ 85254

Why: Because Appointment-Plus needs to fill approximately 12 new positions ASAP, that's why! They are looking for qualified professionals to fit into these following categories:

- Inside Sales Representative
- Major Accounts Sales Representative
- Pre-Sales Technical Coordinator
- Major Accounts Manager
- Technical Support Specialist
- Android Developer
- PHP Developer
- Business Analyst

To know what you are getting into, check out the Appointment-Plus Careers Page, and see what they're all about. Happy job hunting!

Every day I'm amazed at the people who work for Appointment-Plus; whether passionately solving a tough problem, happily going the extra mile for a client, or volunteering to organize an event, I couldn't be more proud of our team.

- Bob La Loggia, CEO

Also, Bob was just recently named the 2012 Ed Denison Business Leader of the Year by the Arizona Technology Council.

What are the global megatrends? Future State 2030 identifies nine global megatrends that are most salient to the future of governments. While they are highly interrelated, the megatrends can broadly be grouped into trends reflecting changes in the status and expectations of individuals, changes in the global economy and changes in the physical environment.

Demographics Higher life expectancy and falling birth rates are increasing the proportion of elderly people across the world, challenging the solvency of social welfare systems, including pensions and healthcare. Some regions are also facing the challenge of integrating large youth populations into saturated labor markets.

Rise of the individual Advances in global education, health and technology have helped empower individuals like never before, leading to increased demands for transparency and participation in government and public decision-making. These changes will continue, and are ushering in a new era in human history in which, by 2022, more people will be middle class than poor.¹

Enabling technology Information and communications technology (ICT) has transformed society over the last 30 years. A new wave of technological advances is now creating novel opportunities, while testing governments' ability to harness their benefits and provide prudent oversight.

Economic interconnectedness The interconnected global economy will see a continued increase in the levels of international trade and capital flows, but unless international conventions can be strengthened, progress and optimum economic benefits may not be realized.

Public debt Public debt is expected to operate as a significant constraint on fiscal and policy options through to 2030 and beyond. Governments' ability to bring debt under control and find new ways of delivering public services will affect their capacity to respond to major social, economic and environmental challenges.

Economic power shift Emerging economies are lifting millions out of poverty while also exerting more influence in the global economy. With a rebalancing of global power, both international institutions and national governments will need a greater focus on maintaining their transparency and inclusiveness.

Climate change Rising greenhouse gas emissions (GHGs) are causing climate change and driving a complex mix of unpredictable changes to the environment while further taxing the resilience of natural and built systems. Achieving the right combination of adaptation and mitigation policies will be difficult for most governments.

Resource stress The combined pressures of population growth, economic growth and climate change will place increased stress on essential natural resources (including water, food, arable land and energy). These issues will place sustainable resource management at the center of government agendas.

Urbanization Almost two-thirds of the world's population will reside in cities by 2030.² Urbanization is creating significant opportunities for social and economic development and more sustainable living, but is also exerting pressure on infrastructure and resources, particularly energy. <http://www.kpmg.com/global>

The sharing economy grows up

The sharing economy is growing and is now worth an estimated $110 billion. Its impacts are being felt in cities and organizations as they adapt to new opportunities as well as threats. Thousands of people are also finding new ways not just to save money but to engage with their communities and develop income streams, which support more flexible but less certain work patterns.

What is changing? The sharing economy continues to attract attention as it grows into an ever more significant economic force. Estimates of its scale vary and are, because of the very nature of the sector, difficult to achieve. One estimate put the value of the sector at $110 billion; another puts peer to peer rental at $26 billion. Airbnb, the room share service, is valued at $2.5 billion and has estimated revenues of $623 million in New York alone. Big numbers in anyone's book. Several things are driving the growth. The recession focused minds on cost; sharing economy options from rooms to wifi to parking to bikes helped contain costs. More importantly they also provide income streams for many people including the growing band of freelancers/ self-employed who either by choice or necessity are looking for different approaches to work. The growth of smart phones and the greater sense of 'public trust' engendered by the popularity of Facebook and other social media provide mechanisms both for booking but also verifying and keeping track if people are not 'good sharers'. Venture capitalists have added to the mix with major investments

Implications The scale, potential for disruption and opportunity in almost equal measure and increasing professionalism of the sharing economy – it has just formed its first industry body PEERS - are focusing minds and attention on the wider impacts; not all of it complimentary. For example, critics say that branding it as the sharing economy hides a growing number of increasingly large organizations keen to make money on the back of it, when what they are really doing is enabling renting by another name. Local industries – such as taxi drivers and hoteliers – are beginning to complain at the loss of business, the lack of a level playing field in terms of costs and regulations. True, but the power of branding combined with technology and consumer demand is winning for now.

Cities are beginning to respond and develop clear policies and strategies to encourage the benefits and minimize problems. For example, each of the thousands of people using Airbnb in New York is estimated to spend an average of $880 – but greater clarity is needed about what is a short let, a hotel room etc. A new 'policy primer' from Shareable brings together suggested good practice and innovations in policy being implemented in US cities, which support sharing economies. It looks at a wide range of options such as: transportation – giving incentives on parking for car-sharing; food - have a land inventory of possible spaces for urban food growing; housing change zoning categories; use procurement to enable local cooperative ventures. Elsewhere, Seoul's Mayor is taking a strategic lead in turning the city into a sharing city; likewise the Mayor of San Francisco. In Seoul, they are vetting and endorsing key sharing service operators; providing investment and subsidies for start-ups; creating publicity and running an international conference. But the private sector is less well developed here than in San Francisco where it takes the lead.

And we probably 'ain't seen nothing yet'. Zipcar has estimated that for each of its shared cars 15 come off the road. When fleets of shared driverless cars really begin to take hold, which would have the added benefit of coming to you and dropping you off – and many consumers are saying they would consider using them – the impacts could be far higher. The insurance industry, the car makers, public transport, taxi-drivers and the parking sector will all be significantly affected, and need to start looking at the impacts soon. If co-housing and shared equipment widened to items used more regularly than hedge trimmers or drills, such as washing machines, reduced sales or larger scale equipment may result.

And the sharing economy will also benefit public services. Many older people have gardens they find difficult to maintain, but are also lonely and have little access to fresh food. Growing veg in older people's gardens could bring them company, greater contact in the community, improved diets and a bit of income.

We first talked about what is now known as the sharing economy in 2007 and 2009 – we called it usership, as opposed to ownership. We got the name wrong, but the trend right. The sharing economy is set to grow, and cities and companies will need to take stock; they will also need to take a more systems view of the options and benefits, develop more open and collaborative approaches to working if they are to benefit from the growing potential of the sharing economy, and ride its disruptive wave.

If you would like a review of how the sharing economy might develop and what it means for your organization, please contact us.
